

Frank Llanos Held On Burglary Count

Police Say He Confessed Entering Service Station

Frank Llanos, 18, a native of Puerto Rico, who has been making his home with an uncle and aunt in Freeport, L. I., for several months was placed under arrest Wednesday evening and after arraignment before Justice Percy Bush of the town of Ulster on a charge of burglary in the third degree was held at the Ulster county jail to await action of the grand jury.

Llanos is charged with having entered the gas station of John A. Surtorius in The Pines, north of Accord, early Monday evening and taking a sum of money from the cash drawer.

County Investigator Clayton Vredenburg, who had been looking for a young man answering his description, picked him up Wednesday afternoon when he saw him moving a lawn on Hurley avenue.

The officer said that Llanos admitted the charge on being questioned; also that before entering the gas station he had attempted to take a truck belonging to Michael Mahoney, but after backing it out of the barn, knocked down some fence posts and finally gave up the attempt to get the truck out on the road.

The young man formerly lived with his uncle and aunt in The Pines before they moved to Freeport and is well acquainted in the neighborhood.

Money Causes Callouses

Schenectady, N. Y., May 17 (AP)—Detectives investigating the death of an aged woman in a rooming house here last night found she had worn two bankrolls containing $2,542 strapped to her legs so long that callouses had developed under and around the bills. The woman, Mrs. Julia Fry, was a widow, believed to be in her 70s. Detectives Anthony Coppola and John Clark said the bills in all denominations from $1 to $100, were tied to her legs with handkerchiefs.

Baylists to Hold Meeting Tonight

Church Family Supper Will Be Feature

The annual and corporate business meetings of the First Baptist Church will be held this evening in connection with a Church Family Night supper at 6:30 o'clock. Families attending the supper will bring their own contributions of food to the pot-luck meal. The Philathea Class members will serve at the tables.

Two entertainment features have been arranged in addition to the regular program of the evening. A two-part duet will be played by Mrs. Decker and Mrs. Tremper. Moving pictures taken of Camp Carman during the 1944 season by Arthur Brown, Sr., will be shown.

All reports have been submitted in advance and will be available in mimeographed form so that those present will be able to follow the business more readily.

Three trustees, two deacons, and three deaconesses are to be elected, each for a term of three years. The church school superintendent, church clerk, and treasurer of benevolence will be elected, each for a term of one year. A pupil committee of five members will also be elected to serve the church until a new pastor is secured.

Brownout Is Over. Blackout Is Continuing

Eldorado, Ill., May 17 (AP)—The news in Eldorado today is light—but colorful.

The brownout over the nation has been lifted, but there's a blackout in this southern Illinois community of 5,000 because the city's in the red on its street lighting bill.

After voters had rejected a proposal to give the Illinois Power Company a 50 year franchise to furnish electricity in the city, the street lights were turned off. The town will remain in the dark unless arrangements are made to pay a $7,500 back bill for current.

Acting Mayor Ernie Tate said if the franchise had been approved (the vote was 852 to 531 against the proposal) the power company would have canceled the debt and furnished free current for street lights. He said he couldn't say when the lights would be restored—or how the bill could be paid.

Pressure Is Put On Conference as Aid to Big Issues

Dr. Wellington Koo of China, Paul Boncour of France and Britain's Earl of Halifax, thought the work of blueprinting peace-machinery could be finished in two weeks. But they evidently are shooting at a windup in the first days of June.

The work and parallel diplomatic developments here, however, have gone far enough to spotlight the accumulation of problems remaining to be solved after this conference. Among the most important:

Agreement among the United Nations, particularly the main military powers, as to what quotas of disarmament they would place at the disposal of the proposed world security council. For the United States this would mean committing at least a part of the peace-time army, navy and air force to the orders of the council.

Negotiation of a new, long-term defense pact among the American nations to carry over the present wartime alliance into the years of peace. Other collections of nations with common interests also may work out such treaties, assuming that the United States proposal for fitting them into the world organization wins approval here.

What to do about letting non-United Nations into the new league. This would be a problem for the organization itself but already is developing great political importance. There is widespread opinion among officials here, for instance, that Spain under the present Franco government could never qualify for membership.

Distribution of Colonies

Distribution of colonial areas taken from enemy nations in this war and reassignment or confirmation of mandated areas held from the previous World War. This conference has limited itself strictly to setting up machinery for supervising trustee territories, putting off to a future peace meeting the agreement on actual control of territories.

Settlement of the Big-Three dispute over a government for Poland. This came into the conference picture chiefly because of the presence here of Stettinius, British Foreign Secretary Eden and Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov. It has come to be regarded as symbolic of the difficulties of cooperation among the powers.

Settlement of conflicting territorial claims among the nations of Europe. Presenting another problem for the future peace conference, these are likely to be among the most difficult questions the victors of this war will have to deal with. This is evidenced by the present Anglo-American differences with Yugoslavia over Trieste.

Future conferences in which these issues will be tackled include, according to present plans and official hopes, a meeting of Eden, Stettinius and Molotov in London a few weeks after the conference ends here; a Big-Three parley—Truman, Stalin and Churchill; a conference of the American nations of this fall; and one or more peace conferences confined to settlement of strictly war-born problems.

Call Chamber of Commerce Office For Memberships

An urgent appeal to all residents of Kingston who plan to become members of the newly organized Chamber of Commerce not to wait until campaign workers call on them but to telephone the organization's office, was made today by Vice President Harry Rigby.

The office in the Governor Clinton Hotel opens Monday morning. The telephone call is 3100. Mr. Rigby pointed out that although there is now more than $9,000 in the organization's treasury from memberships so far received that the workers have only been able so far to canvass a third of prospective members.

He said that some 1,200 prospect cards have been distributed to the volunteer workers and that two-thirds of the prospects have not been seen as yet.

If those who have not been seen by workers would telephone the office it would make the work of the canvassers much easier and the campaign could be closed that much sooner.

An open meeting of the new members of the Chamber of Commerce is being planned for early in June, and an interesting program is being arranged for the occasion.

Japs Seek Way Out of Total Loss

for their "real ideas" on peace terms. There is nothing definite about these inquiries except the suggestion that Japan might consider almost anything except unconditional surrender.

Not a word has been heard through official channels about specific terms it is learned. Current reports that a definite offer had been received by the Office of Strategic Services were discounted here by high officials conversant with Japanese affairs.

Each private inquiry waited toward Washington is given careful study here according to what seems to be its merits and possibilities. One appeared, for instance, to have originated among the "Zaitatsu" or wealthy families of Japan, but could never be positively identified as such. There was some suggestion that another might have originated in court circles, but this was not borne out subsequently.

Officials emphasized that the lack of any official nature in these hints of a Japanese interest in peace make them practically worthless.

The American attitude, was summed up by President Truman in his V-E Day warning to the Japanese that the unconditional surrender formula was their only way out.

"Our blows," said the President, "will not cease until the Japanese military and naval forces lay down their arms in unconditional surrender."

HUMAN REVERSION

One after another the human rats who constituted the inner hierarchy of Nazism are being rounded up, captured or killed, and in any case doomed to pay the penalty for their crimes.

Hitler, the greatest scoundrel of all, seems to have met his fate, although the how and where are doubtful. Himmler, the distinguished hanger-on who slew so many better men than himself, is dead or hiding, and cannot escape. Goering, Von Papen, Hess and other war criminals associated with them are in the book of destiny and never will be missed. Soon the world will be cleansed of that whole vile brood which spilled so much needless blood and brought so much shame to a supposedly civilized world.

For centuries learned men will brood over those strange cases of reversion to barbarism, which sought power by evil ways and found satisfaction in the creation of human wretchedness on a vast scale. We cannot be sure that the world is yet cleansed of them.

Civilization, it seems, is a delicate and fragile plant, hardly old enough yet to keep true to the model. Such strange lapses as we have, from time to time, emphasize the truth that "the proper study of mankind is man."

TEACHING THE GERMANS

"Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings," the world has long been told, wisdom may be gleaned. There may be something to it, judging by the discussion recently reported from a young people's group in a Chicago branch library.

Asked "What should be done with defeated Germany?" a teen-ager contributed the following advice, which is worth heeding by our maturest statesmen.

"Give Germany a real example of democratic living. When you are a freshman, you look up to seniors. If the senior wears big socks, you wear big socks. If the senior wears sloppy joes three sizes too big, you wear them three sizes too big. It is human nature to copy. Set up an ideal state for Germans. Show them how to run it. Teach them the fundamentals of good government."

And when the Germans learn how to run a government ideally, perhaps the rest of the world can take lessons.

NORWAY RESTORED

Five years ago, after a defense as intense as it was hopeless, the Norwegian government was forced to flee and its country disappeared into the black darkness of Nazi domination. Men by hundreds eluded Nazi patrols to follow their king and continue the struggle under British guidance. Those left behind fought on with spirit and vigor, heedless of cold, starvation and sudden death. In four years, at least 271 Norwegians were executed and 300 secretly murdered at home, while 400 ships of their merchant marine and some 3,000 seamen were lost on Allied business. The military losses are still unknown.

Then, on May 13th of this year, four days after the German surrender, came that for which they had endured so long. Crown Prince Olav rode back into Oslo in the battle dress of a Norwegian general, through streets lined with 250,000 weeping, cheering people, nearly one-tenth of all the subjects of his father King Haakon. And while Vidkun Quisling, whose name now means "traitor" in so many languages, complained weakly of his prison food, his erstwhile legions glumly chaffered the British First Airborne heroes of Amhem to their new posts as liberators. The miracle was accomplished.

PRODUCTIVE BONDS

"I never quite grasped the meaning of the old saying, 'eat your cake and have it,'" says a neighbor. "And then all at once in connection with this war loan drive, I got the idea. You buy bonds, and put them away in the bank, and still have them in case of need, not spending them foolishly or losing them."

And more than that, the money you invest

THE AMERICAN REGION

The American Region consists of two continents, North and South America, connected by Central America and ranging from the North to the South Pole. Outside these continents are islands running westward across the Pacific and ending in the Philippines. It is the largest land mass on earth and can dominate geographically all the oceans. It is today the richest and strongest economic power on earth.

The United States alone, before the war, owned a third of the earth's railroads, half the world's radios, 80 per cent of the automobiles, 60 per cent of the telephone and telegraph facilities; it produced 70 per cent of the world's oil, 35 per cent of steel and other commodities in similar proportion. The United States, Canada and Argentina are the principal reservoirs of beef and wheat in all this world. The North and South American continents are the largest producers of nearly all metals.

The peoples of this region are neither politically, socially nor culturally homogeneous. The United States and Canada are Anglo-Saxon countries of mixed religious characteristics, speaking English and grounded deep in the tradition, history and laws of England. All the rest are of Iberian (Spanish or Portuguese) culture and law, Catholic in religion, and deeply affected by the traditions of a proud past on the continent of Europe and in their republics which they founded after conquest and colonization and revolution. Among these peoples is a strong Indian stock, larger and more potent than among their Anglo-Saxon neighbors and influencing their indigenous economic and political policies.

The pace of settlement and the characteristics of development have been different in North and South America and the various countries have not always understood nor been just to each other. Nevertheless, no major war has broken out between them but once in their prolonged history. The Monroe Doctrine, often misunderstood by the Latin Americans, served as a shield against continued European conquest of the American region and its involvement in the numerous wars of Europe. It was during the American Civil War that the last important European attempt was made to take possession of an American country and since that failed, there has been no other.

The Monroe Doctrine, in effect, made the United States the protector of the entire region, but as Latin-American countries achieved maturity, its tone rather than its terms became increasingly offensive. Nations like Mexico, Brazil, the Argentine and others sought to participate in that protection with a voice more equal and sure. The Act of Chapultepec (1945) is the charter of the region. It is a curious document for it breathes the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine; yet it is not a unilateral declaration nor does it make one country the master over the others. It forbids territorial conquest and the interference by one state in the affairs of another. It provides for consultation, conciliation, arbitration and cooperation.

But more significant than the treaty itself is the fact that every nation of the region has agreed to the Declaration. (The islands of the Pacific come into it through their present possessor countries.) It sets the standard for a cooperative society of independent and sovereign nations who agree to maintain in friendly association and who refuse to take advantage of one another for any reason whatsoever. It is an agreement achieved without force, without force or bribery or ideological propaganda. It is based upon self-respect and respect for the rights of others.

The inclusion of Argentina at San Francisco rounded out the effectiveness of the region. Argentina had moved alone in the war and has been regarded as Fascistic, but it joined our side of the war in line to be included at San Francisco and all the American countries united in sponsoring her admittance. It is a huge country of more than a million square miles, with a population of about 14,000,000. Its potentialities are enormous, particularly in a world of an inadequate and shrinking meat supply.

The American Region is rich, strong, cooperative, friendly. As long as the strongest, the United States, avoids arrogance and the others reject both Communism and Fascism, this region will have peace and prosperity. (Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act) WHY SO MANY WERE REJECTED

There has been so much written in newspapers and magazines about the great number of young men rejected for military service because of mental disorders, that we might get the impression that the war itself was responsible for so many cases. As a matter of fact, psychiatrists tell us that there is no cause for alarm. A high rate of rejections for mental and emotional disturbances had been foreseen by physicians because in about two-thirds of the illness encountered by the general practitioner, the underlying cause is mental and emotional.

In a report under the heading Wartime Health and Education in the Journal of the American Medical Association, we read that half the patients in all hospitals at any time are there because of severe mental disorders. "Indeed, one may safely predict that in any group of 100,000, 1 out of 22 will some day be committed to a mental institution. It is not surprising, therefore, that the Army and Navy have had to reject and discharge large numbers of men as unfit to cope with the unusual stresses and strains of military life."

The fact that so many men cannot adjust themselves to military life does not mean that they cannot adjust themselves to our everyday civilian life.

It would seem to be all a matter of the extent or degree of nervousness or emotionalism possessed by the individual as to whether he can adjust himself to military life. "The mental and emotional causes for rejections and discharge include various degrees of nervousness, emotional instability, personality disorders. The great majority of men with these difficulties can adjust themselves satisfactorily to civilian life in the home, on the job, and in the community."

What do the psychiatrists find as the underlying cause of these mental and emotional disturbances? It is the feeling of insecurity present. A man who is uncertain about his health, about his job, about his health and happiness of his loved ones is not his best, his strongest self.

The prevention of this feeling of insecurity is the work of our leaders, employers, educators, labor unions, health and other government departments.

Nervousness

Many persons suffering with various nervous conditions, feeling a disease is present where none exists, obsessiveness, and the like, will be interested in Dr. Barton's booklet "Nervousness," obtained by sending ten cents and a five cent stamp to The Bell Laboratory, a care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 75, Station C, New York, N. New Collective Security Proposal Omits Any Mention of Chapultepec Act

By DAVID LAWRENCE

San Francisco, May 17—The American delegation has deliberately compromised its own differences in a transcendent attempt to salvage out of the San Francisco Conference some sort of lip-service, if nothing else, to the principle of collective security and world organization which had been severely mangled first at Yalta and later here by the Russian insistence on an exemption of her own defensive agreements and regional arrangements.

The new proposal omits mention of the act of Chapultepec and merely says, in effect, that any of all regional arrangements which are based on cooperative action for defense against armed attack are valid, and that if the Security Council doesn't act, the members of a regional pact may do so. The British are delighted with the solution for reasons that have nothing to do with Pan-American problems. For the new set-back means that, if the Russians veto power ever paralyzes action on the continent of Europe, a set of Alliances can be developed almost overnight whereby nations with common interests can act against an armed attack or threat thereof whenever the Security Council has failed to act.

This is really another sort of veto power. It is reminiscent of the checks and balances in our own constitutional system. The main question is whether the Russians will agree to it. The text has been forwarded to Moscow, where it undoubtedly will be carefully examined.

The Russians, however, have insisted that their Franco-Russian and their Czech-Russian alliances, which pledge military action in the event of a renewal of aggression by Germany, are to be outside the United Nations charter. If that, then the Latin Americans will insist that the act of Chapultepec must also be considered outside of the United Nations charter altogether.

It is doubtful whether the Russians will disagree. For in the last press conference held by Foreign Commissar Molotov before he left here, a written statement referring to the Franco-Russian and Czech-Russian Treaties was issued, which said:

"Similar treaties are feasible between other countries such as between Britain and France."

It is true Mr. Molotov was speaking concretely of treaties to prevent renewal of aggression against Germany, of course, proposed five-power pact along those very lines last January, but if the principle of separate alliances of defensive nature are permissible for one purpose, and the security council is not to be allowed to function therein, then it is logical for a bloc of states in western Europe to be formed to accomplish the same defensive purpose as between each other.

The Russians probably will agree that treaties against a renewal of aggression by Germany are one thing and treaties to protect member states as against each other's possible aggression is quite another. The new arrangement, which permits a group of nations to act in self-defense, therefore, poses an important question for Russia to decide. If she agrees, a step toward or at least a recovery of lost ground may be said to have occurred. The American and British delegations thought it worthwhile to risk temporarily a bit of displeasure from the Latin-American sphere in order to attempt collective security back into the charter, even though limited heretofore by the commitment to wisely made at Yalta. This gave each big power a veto over the ordering of force by the security council—something that has been like a millstone around the neck of the San Francisco Conference ever since it convened. One must concede that the American delegation is striving nobly to give the way for some system of collective security, even though it is approached for the time being through the paths of regionalism.

Decision to omit the provisions of the act of Chapultepec or any mention of it from the United Nations charter means, of course, that a supplementary treaty between the inter-American states to assure the use of armed force as a mutual guarantee against aggression will have to be negotiated and ratified by the United States Senate.

This was contemplated at Mexico City, but the Latin-American states would have been better satisfied if the whole idea could have been merged with the United Nations charter and agreed to by the Senate. The American delegation, which includes the influential Senators Vandenberg and Connally, however, has been pledged to ratify such a separate treaty. (Reproduction rights reserved.)

1928. Mrs. Courson was the former Dorothy Brown, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Brown, who for many years resided at 15 West Clinton street. She was a graduate of Kingston High School, and I believe is still a resident of Woodstock, although I have not seen her in many years.

For years one of the leading furniture houses was that of the late S. L. Torrey, which was carried on for a number of years by his widow. The store was located in the three-story brick building next door to the New York Telephone Co. building on Broadway.

The building was owned by C. B. O'Reilly, Inc., and on August 1, 1929, the New York Telephone Co. signed an agreement to purchase the building, and later took possession.

On the second floor were the law offices of John M. Cadogan, now serving as county judge, while the third floor was used for living apartments, the ground floor housing the furniture store.

Some time after the telephone company purchased the building it was demolished.

It was also in July, 1929, that Kingston Post of the American Legion, held its annual meeting and elected Morton Finch as commander. Mr. Finch is still very active in Legion affairs.

Leafing back the pages of the city's history to July 25, 1919, Francis L. Thornberry resigned as secretary of the local Y.M.C.A. to accept a similar post in Niagara Falls. Older readers will recall the years that Mr. Thornberry served the local association.

William Van Aken DuFon of 1413 Clinton avenue, died on July 25, 1925. When a boy he entered the employ of The Freeman in 1871, and during the 58 years that he was employed by this newspaper he proved a most efficient workman. For a number of years prior to his death he was foreman of the composing room of the newspaper.

In politics he was a Republican and had served the city as a member of the Common Council for several terms.

Washington in Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—In the few weeks he has been in office, President Truman already has demonstrated that he will have no more respect for the precedents of office than President Roosevelt had.

As a matter of fact, some who have their noses pretty close to the White House grindstone are saying, even now in all respect that one of the President's outstanding characteristics is one attributed generally to another great native of his home state, the Missouri mule. The characteristic is, of course, stubbornness.

President Truman is as open to advice and counsel as he would like for the front door of the White House to be. He believes in calling in the experts and picking the best of the better brains. But once satisfactory agreement has been reached on the best policy to pursue, that ends it. In his short time in office, "It is so ordered," already has become a stock phrase. Those are the words he uses in reaching a decision and putting a big black period to all further debate.

In several other respects, the new President is proving he is not to be trifled with once his mind is made up. One has to do with the Secret Service.

For years they have held their little tyrannical power over the Presidents and the White House. Often, especially in times of stress, the Secret Service says a President cannot do this or that, cannot go here or there, for reasons of personal safety. President Roosevelt, for all of his penchant for traveling, was a very meek fellow when the Secret Service put its foot down.

President Truman already has the Secret Service spouting gray hairs and on occasion completely bewildered. He just doesn't like all this business of being hemmed in by a regiment of guards, and he'll continue to take his short walk across the street from Blair House to the executive offices in the morning.

If this short walk were all, they could handle the situation with little pain, but when President Truman finds himself with a half hour or so between appointments, he says calmly, "Believe I'll run over to Commerce (or Agriculture, or Treasury), for a while."

For a good many more than 12 years, the Secret Service has been used to having plenty of warning when trips were to be made. President Roosevelt, in Washington, rarely went anywhere but to the Capitol on special occasions or for an afternoon automobile drive along the Potomac. President Truman was in Washington town visitor either day, in fact, not since the lethargic days of the middle and late twenties, when President Coolidge used to go window-shopping on "F" Street, has the Secret Service had to deal with any one like Truman—and never of course in wartime.

His habit of visiting around the departments also has government workers jittery. Inter-office memos already have been passed around in some departments, saying: "Stay on the job. You never can tell when President Truman will drop in for a visit."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Zero Hour Baby

La Junta, Colo., May 17 (AP)—M/Sgt. Joseph Watt was sweating it out at La Junta army air field with 74 points towards a discharge and the stork due any minute.

At three minutes to midnight Saturday it arrived with his third child—giving him one more than the 85 points needed for a discharge. Had the baby been born after midnight Saturday the Burbank, Calif., soldier couldn't have claimed 12 more points!

Strayed

Eugene, Ore., May 17 (AP)—The policeman assumed it was another drunk when a voice said over the telephone, "come and help that man in my front yard move his two water buffaloes."

He was very surprised to find an animal trainer had lost his way back to a circus train.

X Marks the Spot

Kansas City, May 17 (AP)—A 16-year-old boy told police he had seen a man dump "a body in a white sack" into a manhole then sneak away.

In the sack police found a pay telephone which had been stolen from a hotel.

No Optimist

Pocatello, Ida., May 17 (AP)—H. L. Jenkins reported to police that while plowing a field he accidentally dropped his billfold containing his gasoline ration book.

But he confessed doubt the Biblical admonition "As ye sow so shall ye reap," would provide a crop of little gasoline stamps.

Marooned

Blue Springs, Mo., May 17 (AP)—A part of the United States Navy—133 sailors—became castaways here yesterday but lived off the fat of the land for seven hours while their train was held up because of a wreck ahead.

Learning of the trainload of hungry sailors, Blue Springs Red Cross workers prepared and served them 72 pounds of country sausage, 30 dozen eggs, fried potatoes and coffee. No one was hurt in the wreck.

Ladies' Man

De Pue, Ill., May 17 (AP)—Sgt. Robert Kruchinski, who is stationed in Germany, is being hailed by many De Pue women as their "pinup" boy. The women are Kruchinski heard about the bobby pin shortage so when his unit came upon a factory making them in Germany he boxed up a quantity and shipped them to his mother, Mrs. Peter Kruchinski. She's passing them around to her friends.

WHERE DID YOU GET THESE LOVELY NEW LINENS?

THEY'RE NOT NEW.
I MADE THEM SNOWY-
WHITE, SANITARY, TOO, WITH CLOROX!

IT'S mighty flattering when old linens are mistaken for new. And millions of housewives have learned the secret of making white cottons and linens snowy-white, of brightening fast colors. They use Clorox in laundering. It's just that simple. Clorox bleaches extra-gently, lessens rubbing, lets linens last longer. Clorox also disinfects, deodorizes and removes stains.

Make Kitchen "Danger Zones" Hygienically Clean! The drainboard, sink, refrigerator, dishcloth, mop—these may be germ "danger zones." Reduce risk by disinfecting them with Clorox. Simply follow directions on the label.

Hidden Bathroom Germ Bangers! Invisible germ dangers often exist on seemingly clean surfaces. Use Clorox in routine cleansing as an added safeguard to health.

It seems likely the Germans may have to work out much of their reparations in sheer sweat, perhaps for years to come. Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, Gen. Eisenhower's deputy for the occupation of Germany, has said that when the Reich is combed for this labor job the most active Nazis will be placed on top of the list. Supreme Headquarters is giving out little information on the exact stage which has been reached in the vast task of rounding up and disarming the surrendered German army. The best available unofficial information, however, is that the disarming is complete and that Nazi troops inside Germany are all rounded up.

It still is not clear what has been done about getting the Germans out of Norway and Denmark. To all specific questions on this subject officials at advanced S.H.A.E.F. headquarters at Reims have indicated that no answer will be forthcoming for a week or more.

Elsworth Will Be Guest Speaker At Legion Sunday

New Citizens to Attend Program Arranged for 'I Am an American Day'

Roscoe V. Elsworth, justice of the supreme court, will be the speaker Sunday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the American Legion Home, West O'Reilly street, when "I Am An American Day" will be observed by members of the Post with the 183 foreign born residents of the county who have been admitted to citizenship during the past year. The new citizens have been invited to attend the services by County Clerk Robert A. Snyder, who sent a letter to each of the men and women admitted to citizenship.

County Clerk Snyder's letter of invitation to the "guests" calls attention to the proclamation of the President of the United States of America, designating May 20th as "I Am An American Day" and says:

"In fitting commemoration of this occasion, Kingston Post No. 150 of the American Legion has scheduled a most interesting and worthwhile celebration. The affair will be held at the American Legion Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street, Kingston, N. Y., starting at 3:15 p. m. and the main address will be delivered by Hon. Roscoe V. Elsworth, justice of the supreme court, who has recently attained the great privilege of American citizenship, may I respectfully urge that you make every effort to be present at these exercises?"

Morton Finch, chairman of the program committee, has arranged the following program: Advance of colors by Kingston Post No. 150, American Legion Color Guard, Clarence L. Hyde, sergeant.

State Has Moved To Protect Farm Help, Godfrey Says

Albany, N. Y., May 17 (AP)—New York state has taken "every reasonable step to insure, as far as possible, health protection for migratory farm workers, their families and the communities in which they will live," according to State Health Commissioner Edward S. Godfrey, Jr.

His statement followed an announcement yesterday by Governor Dewey of a broad program of state supervision of health conditions in migratory workers' camps which Dewey termed "the first frontal attack on a problem that has beset the state for several years."

The program includes examination of the physical facilities of the camps, a provision for revocation of permits for non-compliance with the State Sanitary Code, weekly inspections by a sanitary engineer and weekly visits by a public health nurse, venereal disease treatment, chest examinations, a health education program and temporary housing for workers whose camps are closed for violations of the sanitary code.

A special deputy attorney general will be assigned to advise on enforcement questions and handle possible legal matters.

There were approximately 10,000 migratory workers employed on farms and in canning factories in the state last year.

The program was outlined in an exchange of letters between Governor Dewey and State Health Commissioner Edward S. Godfrey, Jr. It was prepared by the inter-departmental committee on migratory camps which includes representatives of a number of interested state departments.

Americans Will Feel Sugar Shortage Soon

New York, May 17 (AP)—Grandma's cookie jar will be nearly like Mother Hubbard's cupboard for the rest of the year.

With sugar supplies the lowest since the war started, American eating habits from breakfast cereal through dessert will feel the pinch.

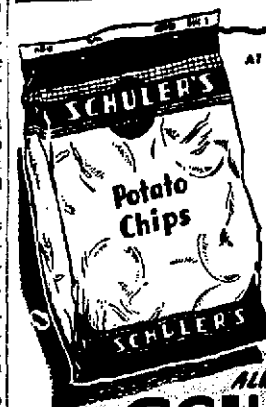

"The people of the United States face the most critical sugar famine in their history," Ody H. Lamborn, president of Lamborn & Co., sugar brokers, declared.

The recent cut in consumer sugar rations, effected by extending Stamp 36 through August 31, is just the first step in the general curtailment program.

Industrial users are expected to have their allocations reduced sharply for the last half of 1945—and that means less commercial baked goods, less ice cream, soft drinks and candy.

Greatest single factor in reduction of sugar supplies is said to be a drought in Cuba which cut the crop there 600,000 to 700,000 tons below advance estimates. Failure to buy bonds helps the enemy.

The War Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
A.P. Foreign News Analyst

The clutch of the Allied machine for cleaning up Germany seems to have meshed suddenly, after considerable unpleasant rasping, and we are beginning to get high-power action—a fact which will ease ragged nerves considerably.

There were several important developments yesterday, emanating from such widely separated centers as Washington, London and Allied Supreme Headquarters in Germany. For one thing we got clarification—in broad terms—of the government under which Germany will work during occupation.

In the crisp language of Major General Clay, General Eisenhower's deputy for the occupation, "The Allied government in Germany is going to be military and the Germans are going to know its military." That is to say, there's going to be no nonsense—no coddling of the people who twice in a generation have plunged the world into war.

Simultaneously in London British Prime Minister Churchill gave an important interpretation of this position. He said that in general it was the Allied intention that "the Germans should administer their country in obedience to Allied directions," and added that the Allies have "no intention of undertaking the burden of administering Germany ourselves."

Thus General Clay and Mr. Churchill between them give us a sufficiently clear over-all picture of what will happen. The Germans themselves must assume the burden of routine administration—a heavy task in any big country—but this administrative structure will carry out its work in accordance with Allied policies and will be under rigid military control. Fair enough!

Meantime the Allies have a big job of house-cleaning to do. Clay said the initial aims of the American occupation would be to finish smashing Germany's potential to make war, to crush Nazism utterly, and to see that all war criminals are caught and punished.

The highly important matter of prosecuting war-guilt also made gratifying progress. The United States let it be known that it is anxious to start sorting out those who will be tried before an international court, and Washington's top prosecutors have been named. By way of proof that all great minds run in the same channel, the United States War Crimes Commission in London announced that an international conference on German war crimes would start May 31.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post
(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

HOW MANY RINGS?

A man asks: "Please tell me if it is considered bad taste for a man to wear two finger rings, i.e. one on the third finger of his left hand and the other on his little finger of the right?"

Two rings are not really bad, but neither are they completely good. Much depends, however, upon the rings and still more, upon the man's hands. Long-fingered lean hands that are tan brown, with beautiful nails, can absorb rings of exaggerated size, whereas thick, short, red-skinned ones should wear nothing more than a small plain signet or wedding ring. As a matter of fact, yesterday's noted fashion of a gypsy hoop of three small stones sunk into plain gold, with a narrow wedding circle used as a guard solved the problem of two rings that looked well on almost every type of hand.

A Leader's Return

Dear Mrs. Post: I am about to return an electrical gadget lent to me by a stranger through a neighbor. She had heard that I needed this and as it is not possible to buy such equipment now, insisted that I use hers. Please tell me what I might do to add to my expression of appreciation or would anything but a verbal thank you be liable to hurt her feelings? I mean, could a present perhaps spoil the pleasure she must have derived from her generosity?

Answer: To return it promptly and in good order is the one requisite. Say "Thank You!" and sometime maybe, you can perhaps do something for her. Your own idea about not trying to repay her is quite right.

Wedding Announcement Sent to Bride and Bridegroom's Names

Dear Mrs. Post: In your book you give sample wording for the engraved announcement of marriage to be sent by a widow and her new husband in their names. Is it possible for a maiden bride to send this type of announcement when her parents are not living and she has no brothers or sisters and only distant relatives to whom she does not feel at all close?

Answer: Yes, perfectly. The wording is:

Miss Mary Jones and Mr. John Henry Smith have the honour to announce their marriage etc.

Or, they can merely say, "announce their marriage."

"Wedding Invitations and Announcements" is a valuable guide for the family of a future bride. For this leaflet, send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Post in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Enraged Dogs Slay Woman in Miami

Flesh Is Torn From Both Arms, Scalp Bared

Miami, Fla., May 17 (AP)—Police reported a half dozen enraged dogs fatally attacked a woman identified as Mrs. Micko Zinke at Miami Springs yesterday.

At the hospital physicians said the flesh had been torn from both the victim's arms, there were many gashes on her legs, and patches of scalp had been laid bare.

Still conscious when police arrived at the scene, after two soldiers from a nearby army station had heard her screams and driven off the dogs, Mrs. Zinke whispered that she wanted to make her will.

Police Officer Fred Freeman said the officer copied the document, dictated by the dying woman, leaving her property to a son, Sgt. R. M. Zinke, with the Air Transport Command at Mitchell Field, N. Y.

Magistrate H. L. Oppenborn signed an order for the removal of the dogs, six pit bulls, to the city pound, and the arrest of the dogs' owner.

Wildcat Slaughter Houses Threatened

Operators Liable to Fines and Imprisonment

With only 95 Class 2 meat slaughtering concerns in the 16 county O.P.A. district registered with the Albany office, steps have been taken to stamp out wildcat operators and other irregulars with fines and possible imprisonment.

Monday marked the last day for Class 2 slaughterers to register with the Albany office and with the small number registered William J. Heinecke, Jr., chief enforcement of the Albany area, said his office would start the work of drawing up papers to enjoin non-registered concerns from operating.

The re-registration of the non-federally inspected slaughterers, which began on April 30 effects the shift of control over such killers from the War Food Administration to the O.P.A. in an effort to improve meat distribution.

Farm slaughterers, known as Class 3 slaughterers are also affected by the transfer, and must register with their local O.P.A. boards or they will not be permitted to sell or give away meat resulting from the slaughter of livestock.

New Drug Helps Typhoid Patients

Streptomycin Is Similar to Penicillin

Chicago, May 17 (AP)—A new drug similar to penicillin in action holds promise of aiding recovery from typhoid, a disease for which there has been no treatment of value, the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

The drug is streptomycin, a nontoxic substance which, like penicillin inhibits or destroys bacterial growth and acts on some germs on which penicillin has no effect, including the microbe causing typhoid.

Dr. Hobart A. Reinmann and associates of Philadelphia reported using the drug on five patients during a typhoid epidemic there in December, 1944. The article said three of the patients recovered and it attributed their recovery to streptomycin because of the amounts of the drug found in the body and the relationship between decline of fever and the time injections were given.

It is not yet known whether the drug is to be sold or given away free, resulting from the slaughter of livestock.

Book and Author Bond Rally

Van Doren Is Chief Speaker At Book and Author Rally

The Book and Author War Bond rally held in connection with the 7th War Loan Drive was conducted at Kingston High School Auditorium Wednesday afternoon. Dr. Carl Van Doren noted biographer and historian was the main speaker of the day. He was introduced by Louis Bailey, national chairman of the library committee for the Book and Author Bond Rally.

Dr. Van Doren first described a writer as "merely a person who puts into words skillfully a great many things that are in the minds of all of us all of the time." The writer is a kind of barometer or seismograph of the people's thoughts. Today the main thought in many people's minds Dr. Van Doren believes is "What place the people of the United States and the United States, is going to play in the world ahead of us?" In developing this idea he drew a remarkable analogy between the formation of the United States and the meetings being held today to form a world organization. Many people 160 years ago were in favor of continuing the colonies as separate nations; some ideas were expressed to divide the colonies into sections and of course the final solution of all uniting was being withheld.

Even when the Constitution of the United States was voted on for ratification Dr. Van Doren pointed out that many people were against adopting it. Through the early history of the country were occasions when some of the states threatened to secede and finally the south did during the Civil War. However, time has proven the success of the idea and Dr. Van Doren believes we are to be an example for the rest of the world in forming some world government.

"People are looking at us to see how we feel because we have in the United States the first great federation of republics. The one who has made it work on the largest scale, permitting people of many nationalities to come together and get along."

Dr. Van Doren also suggested that Philadelphia would be an ideal place for the world organization not only because of its historical significance in the forming of our own government but also because Geneva is in the midst of war-torn countries and also has the remnants of the old League of Nations.

Clarence L. Dumm, principal of the high school presided at the rally. Following a piano solo by Bruce Decker, Richmond F. Meyers, chairman of District Six, led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag and the singing of the national anthem. Mayor William F. Edelmuth welcomed the distinguished guests and people to the rally. "To help on the home front is to buy bonds," he said, as he asked the people to double the bond sales. Bringing the report of the activities in schools and colleges for the bond drives, Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of New Paltz State Teachers College, told of the many war time drives in which the students participate. More than 28 million persons have been informed about war bonds through the students; more than 11 million were asked to buy; more than 3 million were approached in no other way and one and one half million bought bonds.

Labor Urges Auto Reconversion; U.S. Sees 200,000 Quota

Order Will Not Come Prior to July 1, W.P.B. Says; Changes Will Be Made

Washington, May 17 (AP)—Labor took up the plea today for swift reconversion of the auto industry as the government indicated 200,000 cars will be turned out this year.

The industry's labor advisory committee went before War Production Board executives to emphasize, as manufacturers did yesterday, that serious unemployment may develop if the go-ahead is long delayed.

W.P.B. told the producers it agrees and promised a green light "as soon as possible," but not before July 1.

Manufacturers submitted a recommendation that they be allowed to build at least 200,000 cars in the part of 1945 remaining when controls are eased. To this W.P.B.'s auto reconversion boss, Henry P. Nelson, replied:

"That looks like a pretty good approach right now on the basis of the materials supply outlook." Nelson told a news conference that production during the first three months of next year probably would reach about 400,000 cars. He added there is little likelihood of many cars being produced before the latter part of this year.

No passenger autos have been turned out since February, 1942, when the 520,000 supply then on hand was frozen for rationing to essential users. Fewer than 8,000 of those cars remain. W.P.B. has said rationing will be continued until production hits a rate of at least 100,000 a month.

W.P.B. said all manufacturers would get the green light at the same time, but neither Nelson nor the industry representatives could predict how soon after that the first cars would appear.

One thing, however, is certain: "They will be different from the 1942 models," said George Romney, managing director of the Automotive War Council.

Failure to buy bonds helps only the enemy.

Rainfall Is Recorded

Nearly 5 1/2 inches of rain has fallen in Kingston for the first 15 days in May, according to the records in the city engineer's office. This figure does not include the storm Wednesday afternoon. Temperatures in the city ranged from a low of 51 degrees in the morning to a high of 78 degrees in the afternoon. This morning at 6 o'clock the official thermometer was recording 56 degrees.
